PRESS RELEASE / BIO

Amelia Seyssel has performed in recital and oratorio throughout her career drawing on music from a variety of styles by composers ranging from Bach to Mozart, Purcell to Britten and Schubert to Mahler. Praised for her intelligibility and enthusiastic interpretation of fine Art Song literature, her most recent artistic efforts have been focused on the song repertoire of the French, Spanish and English language composers.

In 2006, jointly with pianist Maria Rivera White, Ms. Seyssel founded the Cantatrice Art Song Ensemble with the purpose of promoting the awareness of the fine artistry inherent in the Art Song Recital experience. The Ensemble's goals are to raise awareness of the unique 'poetry and music' experience presented by the Art Song repertoire, as well as to promote an appreciation by the American public of significant Spanish and Mexican composers. Also to this end, in 2009 the ensemble released a professional CD, including repertoire of Spanish and Mexican composers.

Ms. Seyssel holds a Master of Fine Arts in Music Performance from Mills College in California where she was awarded a scholarship for outstanding achievement. Her performing debut was in California while studying with Donna Petersen, a San Francisco Opera and Metropolitan Opera Audition Judge for the West Coast. While at Mills, Ms. Seyssel also studied with visiting professor Jane Manning, a distinguished exponent of contemporary vocal music and author of the book 'New Vocal Repertory'.

Since moving to the East Coast she has continued her vocal studies at the Manhattan School of Music Vocal Arts Institute, including workshops with Nico Castel, Cynthia Hoffman, Lou Galterio and Margaret Hoswell, and at Princeton's Westminster Choir College, including a vocal master class with Dalton Baldwin and, most recently, with Joyce McLean of the Juilliard School's Evening Division.
